Bloemfontein is one of the friendliest cities in South Africa and well known for its hospitality.

** The SARL will assist the Radio Society of Zambia with the licensing of amateurs in that country. In accordance with the requirements of the ITU, the Zambian authorities require a harmonised amateur radio examination certificate (HAREC) before issuing a license.

In the past this certificate was provided by the UK's City and Guilds after Zambian candidates passed the City and Guilds Radio Amateur Examination.. This arrangement is no longer in operation.

The Radio Society of Zambia has approached the SARL to conclude an agreement whereby the Zambian candidates can write the South African examination. Under the new agreement, set out in a memorandum of understanding, Zambian candidates will in future enter for the South African examination. For this purpose, a SARL examination centre will be registered in Zambia and the Radio Society of Zambia will provide the venue, invigilators, security arrangements and cover all costs.. The answer papers will be returned to South Africa and will be marked here. HAREC certificates will be couriered to the Radio Society of Zambia for those candidates who pass. The Zambian authorities have already agreed to accept the HARECs issued by the SARL.

Zambian candidates who are members of the Radio Society of Zambia qualify for SADC members of the SARL.

This arrangement is similar to the arrangement the SARL already has with Namibian Amateur Radio League.

** Two weeks ago the SARL Council met for its annual two day session at the National Amateur Radio Centre and launched a project to focus more on the promotion of Amateur Radio at various levels of Government, During a three hour session Councillors discussed segmentation of the benefits that amateur radio offers to South Africa and its people and how best to communicate this to the role players who can positively influence and support amateur radio, The objective is to put “amateur radio” back into the South African Radio League. Comprehensive support materials is being developed. A full report will be tabled and discussed at the annual general meeting next month.

Members are invited to support the communication and marketing project by sharing how they perceive the value that amateur radio brings to South Africa and its people. Send your input to admin@sarl.org.za

The SARL will not renew your licence on your behalf. Please pay you annual license renewal to ICASA as stipulated by the Telecommunications Act.
